The Authour to the Reader.

THE proper Uſe and Deſign of a Latin Dictionary, ſuited to Engliſh and tender Capacities is (in brief) the Tranſlating of Latin into Engliſh firſt (as being the eaſieſt,) and then the turning of Engliſh into Latin (ſome Grammatical foundation being preſuppoſed) without the help of other Books.

In anſwer to this Deſign it ſhould conſiſt of two parts; One containing all Words (both Appellative and Proper) all Idioms and Phraſes uſed in the Latin Tongue, with appoſite Engliſh ſuited thereunto; The other containing all kind of Words, Terms of Art and Phraſes uſed in the Engliſh Tongue, with proper Latin ſuited to them; and both in an Alphabetical Order: becauſe that is moſt ſuitable to the weakeſt Capacities, and is not (in the leſt) prejudicial to the ſtrongeſt.

Having therefore (as to this general Deſign) obſerved what is amiſs, ſuperfluous and wanting in others; That we have here endeavoured to Rectifie, Retrench and Supply.

In the Latin part, many Words and Phraſes are much more properly rendred than they were in any other; and where a ſingle word could conveniently be had, we choſe it rather than a long and tedious Periphraſis.

We have not heapt up Synonoma's, but yet took care that Words(eſpecially the primitives) ſhould have the whole variety of their ſeveral ſignifications.

Such uſefull Explications, Directions and References as were wont to be in Latin, are here in plain and intelligible Engliſh. But ſuch Latin Explications as were afterwards repeated again in Engliſh, we judged a needleſs vanity, and therefore have omitted them. We have alſo omitted tedious Etymologies, which (for the moſt part) depended meerly upon Conjectures, and were of little or no Uſe at all to Children, but have given them where they are plain, and rationally to be deduced, how carefully they have been conſidered, and how well performed, we referre to the judgment of the learned.

The quantities are here made more complete, by being placed over initial vowels, as well as other ſyllables.

Many Phraſes and Proper Names (with the hardeſt of their Genitives)are added from Calepine, Ferrarius and others.

The method alſo of Calepine is here obſerved in placing all (both Common and Proper) in an Alphabetical order. Which cannot be blamed by any that conſiders the great conveniency of diſpatch in the ſearch of any thing required, the natural dependency of one upon another, the many Repetitions and References that were wont to be made from one to another, and are all by this method ſaved.

But that method of Calepine and others after him (who wrote for Men) in placing the Derivatives all under their primitives, is not (in the leſt) to be followed by thoſe who pretend that they condeſcend to the loweſt capacities. For they are ſometime ſo ſtrangely changed, that it puzzles an experienced judgment where to look them.

In the Engliſh part, the Corrections are ſo many and ſo great, as would take up too much Time and Room to relate.

Thouſands of Words, Particles, Idioms, Phraſes and Proverbs are added. Together with the whole body of Proper Names, not only of Men and Women, and places here in England (ſo far as could be procured) but alſo the Modern names of Foreign Countries, Iſlands, Mountains, Cities, Rivers, and other noted Places, eſpecially in Europe, as France, Germany, &c.

Some obſolete Words and uncouth Phraſes are among the reſt, becauſe we are to ſuppoſe the very worſt that any one can have occaſion to turn into Latin, without intending the Engliſh for uſe. For as in the Latin part only the Engliſh, ſo in the Engliſh part only the Latin is to be propos'd for imitation. And the want of this conſideration gave occaſion to many miſtakes in other Works of this nature.

The Engliſh irregular Plurals of Nouns, and Preter-tenſes of Verbs are here (to our utmoſt) obſerved. Together with ſuch Engliſh Subſtantives, as are alſo taken and uſed as Adjectives, than which there is hardly any thing more common, yet nothing leſs regarded, or more needful to be underſtood.

And all in a regular and Alphabetical Order. As alſo the names of Birds, Beaſts, and other things that were wont to be in particular Tables or many little Dictionaries within the greater. Which was far from being ſuited to the common uſe of Schools or Childrens capacities. Becauſe it ſuppoſed in them not only a Manly judgment, but a judgment Philoſophical. For unleſs they know beforehand what the thing is, or what General Head it is under, they muſt of neceſſity ſearch all thoſe petty Dictionaries, or at leaſt look ſo long till they find. But a little experience will practically demonſtrate the uſefulneſs of our Method, and all we have done.

I think there is none can object the ſmalneſs of the Character, who conſiders, that it is intended for young eyes, in the peruſal of a word or two, and not to be pored on as a continued diſcourſe. But eſpecially conſidering how much is comprized in ſo little room, that it might be much more Portable and far leſs chargeable than others.

By the Bookſeller.

THis Book hath ſufficiently commended it ſelf to the VVorld by the Sale of almoſt 4000 in leſs than two years time.

There is lately Publiſhed by the ſame Author Mr. Eliſha Coles, and ſold by Peter Parker at the Leg and Star in Cornhill,

An Engliſh Dictionary: Explaining the difficult Terms that are uſed in Divinity, Husbandry, Phyſick, Philoſophy, Law, Navigation, Mathematicks, and other Arts and Sciences. Containing many thouſands of hard VVords (and proper names of Places) more than are in any other Engliſh Dictionary or Expoſitor. Together with the Etymological Derivation of them from their proper Fountains, whether Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, or any other Language. In a Method more comprehenſive, than any that is extant.

Intended for the help of ſuch as underſtand not the Latin, and other learned Languages, that they may arrive at a competent Knowledge to read and write Engliſh with the greater Judgment and Certainty.

Dr.

Dr. W's. Opinion of Mr. Coles Dictionary.

Mr. Parker.

I commend your Diligence and Diſcretion in promoting and Printing ſo uſeful a Book, as the Engliſh and Latin Dictionary (Publiſhed by Mr. Eliſha Coles) a Work which I have long wiſh't for, as very much conducing to the Public Good.

For all the Dictionaries yet extant (tho moſt of them compos'd with great skill and Learning, and of good Uſe to Learned men) either by reaſon of their great Bulk, or (if in ſmall Volumes) of their great Defect, are no way comparable to this Dictionary you have now Printed for the uſe of Children, who are ſet to School to learn the Latin Tongue.

For the Engliſh Dictionaries (wherein the Engliſh goes before the Latin) all before this extant, are not only very deficient, very many Words being wanting in them, and ſcarce any of thoſe Forms of Speech peculiar to our Tongue, & which are to be render'd in Phraſes proper to the Latin, being to be found in them (wherein yet the greateſt Difficulty lies, and conſequently whereof there is the greateſt Neceſſity in Books of this kind) but beſides this, they are uſually ſtufft up which a tumultuous Heap of Latin Words, ſome proper, others Metaphorical, others but nominal, being indeed Greek in Latin letters, and many obſolete or incongruous, being much more proper and agreeable to other Engliſh Words than thoſe to which they are ſubjoyn'd. Hence the Making of Latin, which in Schools is the chief and moſt neceſſary exerciſe for Beginners, becomes a Task intolerable. And when it is made by the Help of thoſe Dictionaries, it has (as needs it muſt) the moſt ſtrange Face and Sound imaginable, that to him that underſtands the true Propriety of the Latin-Tongue, it appears altogether barbarous, abſurd, and ridiculous. Hereupon the School-maſter is angry, and the poor Scholar is ſeverely beaten, who knows nothing of the Badneſs of his Latin, till he findes his Faults corrected in Letters of blood. But now all this while the Fault is not in the Children, but in the Book, which while they make it their Refuge, proves the great Impediment of their Learning. And this I think will plainly appear by this Compariſon.

A man places his Son with a Printer, that of him he may learn the Art of Printing. Now it is not neceſſary that he which ſets the Letters for the Preſs, ſhould underſtand the Language which is to be Printed. 'Tis then the Employment of this Lad, by the Appointment of his Maſter, to ſet the Letters for the Preſs, for the Printing a ſheet of Paper in the Latin Tongue. He is brought to the Boxes of Letters, which are ready furniſht and prepar'd to his Hand, he is taught the Order of Letters, and the Art of Compoſing. He proceeds according to this Order, and errs not in the Uſe of this Art. But when a Proof is drawn off from the Preſs, when a ſheet of Paper is printed with the Letters by him ſet, it hath the ſtrangeſt Aſpect imaginable. For in ſome Words there are two or three Latin letters, then a Greek letter or two, then one or two Italick letters, and in each Word ſtill ſome old Engliſh or Dutch-letters intermixt, and oft-times empty ſpaces in the midſt of Words, having no Letters at all. The Maſter of the Preſs at the beholding of this, is ſtrangely incenſt; ſeeing it is well known he hath had time enough to learn the right order and art of compoſing, the Lad eſcapes not without ſtripes, now how much is he to be pittyed, in caſe upon Examination of the matter, he be found to be in no fault at all. And ſo indeed the Caſe ſtands. For the only cauſe of all the miſcarriage is this: The Perſon to whom the chief place in the Printing-houſe is aſſign'd, in the Diſtribution of the Letters, conſtantly fills all the Boxes with a ſtrange confus'd Huddle of letters, putting in the ſame Box ſome Roman, ſome Italick Letters, ſome Greek letters, ſome

This Example is according to a Cuſtom uſed in Holland.

Not obſerving Alphabetical Order, turning the Boxes into Pye, a Term uſed in Printing when ſeveral ſorts of letters are mixt together.

old Engliſh Letters, and in ſome Boxes aſſign'd for ſome of the Letters, none at all. And he that is a Learner, and not well able to diſtinguiſh theſe letters,and is only taught to take ſuch Letters out of ſuch boxes,though he exactly obſerve his preſcription, muſt needs make ſuch miſerable work as has been before repreſented.And while the Boxes remain furniſh't with ſuch a ſtrange Mixture of Letters, 'tis impoſſible he ſhould make better Work.And where he is furniſh't with no letters at all of that kind, he muſt of Neceſſity either make vacant ſpaces,or fill up with heterogeneous letters, which will render the Print utterly unintelligible. And till the Boxes of Letters are better order'd, 'tis impoſſible theſe Errours ſhould ever be redreſt.

I could heartily wiſh that the Errours of making Latin in the School, were not too parallel to this of ſetting letters for the Preſs. But it is too manifeſt that the Engliſh Dictionaries hitherto extant are like thoſe Loculi of heterogeneous letters. And while children are yet learning the Latin Tongue,it's utterly impoſſible they ſhould diſcern that propriety of Words, which neceſſarily ſuppoſes an exact knowledge of it. Hence in their making of Latin there is that wild Mixture of Words, proper, improper, metaphorical, exotick and obſolete: and oft for want of a Word in the Dictionary, they are forc't to coin one from the Engliſh, or leave a vacancy in the Latin, which breaking the ſentence deſtroys the ſenſe. Thus a company of diſagreeing Words, rudely chain'd together (like Captives of divers Nations) by the Rules of Concord and Regiment, make up a ſtrange piece of barbarous Nonſenſe. And Children train'd up in theſe Exerciſes never arrive at the skill of making good Latin, till they are furniſht with ſo many proper Words and Phraſes in the Latin Authors they have learn'd, as will ſerve for this Purpoſe. And thus the Dictionaries deſign'd for their Help, prove rather hurtful and impedimental to them, till they have made ſuch an Advance in Learning, as that they have little or no further Uſe or Need of them.

By this means it comes to paſs, that the progreſs of hopeful youths in Learning,is extremely retarded.They are kept it may be ſeven years at School before they can learn the Latin Tongue, when I doubt not but it may be made manifeſt by demonſtrative proofs and undenyable experience, that by an ordinary Diligence, in the uſe of proper and fit Means, a lad of ordinary Capacity,in the ſpace of one Year, may be advanc't to as great or greater Perfection in the Knowledge of the Latin Tongue. And for the more ſpeedy Attainment of Learning, the former age hath not furniſht us with ſo proper a Help as this preſent Book.

For in this little Dictionary Children may readily find a proper Latin Word for any Engliſh one, and the right Interpretation in Engliſh of any Word that occurs in the Latin Tongue. Here likewiſe the Anglicisms or Propriety of our Engliſh Tongue, which are of greateſt Difficulty, and give the greateſt trouble to Beginners, have their Import expreſt in proper Latin Phraſes*: and the chief Phraſes and* Idioms of the Latin Tongue, are truly interpreted in Engliſh,with a brief Explication of ſuch proper Names as do occur in Poets and Hiſtorians. Here is a Furniture ſufficient for the carrying of the Learned by the Conduct of a diſcreet Teacher, through the Latin Tongue. Upon this Account I cannot but congratulate the youth of this Age, in that they are or may be, at a low price, furniſh't with a little Book of great Uſe, by the Help whereof they may in a pleaſant and Compendious Way, arrive at that Learning by which they may attain to Riches and Honour, and which being accompany'd with true Piety, will prepare them for the Higheſt Happineſs.

To conclude, that this little Dictionary is above all extant, adapted to the Uſe of Schools, and Benefit of Scholars, that deſire to attain the Latin Tongue is the Opinion of

Sir,

Sept. 10. 1677. Your loving Friend
